

Ulster Bank takes to the road

07/06/2016

Ulster Bank takes to the road

Ulster Bank has launched a series of business roadshows around the country, starting this Thursday in Cork. The bank has teamed up with organisations such as the Irish Exporters Association and the Irish Independent to roll out a series of networking events, to provide advice to companies planning for 2016 and beyond.

Ulster Bank has a dedicated fund of €1.5bn available to lend to businesses in 2016, a 33pc increase on last year. As part of the ten Roadshows, there will be briefings from in-house experts on innovation, exporting, agriculture, sustainable growth, customer engagement and social media. Pictured at the launch are Eddie Cullen, managing director of Ulster Bank's commercial banking division, and Simon McKeever, chief executive, Irish Exporters Association launch. Photo: Leon Farrell/Photocall Ireland