

Today in the press

18th December 2015

TECHNOLOGY FIRM NEWSWEAVER TO CREATE 60 JOBS IN CORK

A technology company that provides internal communications for companies including Rolls-Royce, Vodafone, and Kellogg's is to create 60 jobs, with a concentration on positions in research and development, at its Cork headquarters.

Newsweaver has announced that its workforce is to grow from 80 to 140 over the next two years, in an expansion supported by the Department of Jobs, Enterprise, and Innovation through Enterprise Ireland, says the Irish Examiner. As part of this project, the company is to double the number of developers it employs as it grows its international customer base and will be expanding across other areas including customer support, marketing, technical support, and sales in Ireland and the US. Newsweaver chief executive Andrew O'Shaughnessy set up the company in Cork in 2002. Newsweaver was recently named as one of the country's best employers, and also one of Ireland's best ICT companies by the Irish Exporters Association.